the Alberni local.

LOG STORAGE AREAS

He said the injunction, if granted, would stop union members from entering the company's log storage areas, and enjoin them from trying to persuade pulp and paper workers to leave their jobs and from interfering with the company's log towing operations. An order will also be sought, the spokesman said, to compel the union to post notices revoking what he said were previous union statements that British Columbia's labor erisis is slowly developing into a battle of injunctions and court appearance. Altogether almost a dozen court cases are scheduled.

The latest was granted by Mr. Justice Thomas Brown restraining the striking International Wood workers of America from interfering with lumber-loading operations at Victoria's Ogden Docks. It is returnable Friday.

With G. E. Mortimore

WELL, they are talking about poisoning Langford Lake again, and I understand that the game department people really mean to do it, this time.

The object of poisoning a lake is to clean out the so-called "trash" fish like catfish and sunfish, and stock the lake with sporting fish, such as trout. I know the game department biologists are scientific men who know what they are doing. Their purpose is to use the lake for the kind of sporting fish that will live and grow best there.

Allowing fish like catfish and sunfish to live forms no part of their plan.

The experts know how to accomplish their purpose. Experts generally do. But one important question arises in a layman's mind, is their purpose worth accomplishing?

Is this a good thing to do? It depends who you are. If you are a fish and game club member and a keen fisherman, it is a good thing to clean out the nondescript fish and replace them with clean-cut fish like trout.

But if you are a small boy with primitive tackle fishing off a wharf or the lake shore, you take a wholly different viewpoint. You get hours of fun catching sunfish and catfish,

Many adults like eating catfish. In the southern United States it is highly esteemed as a delicacy.

There are also plenty of bass of a decent size being taken from the lake, and some trout in the being taken from the lake, and some trout in the region of three pounds.

If they poison the lake and stock it with trout, the keen fishermen will enjoy greater sport. If they should stock it with bass, the bass will grow somewhat larger than they did when they had to compete with other fish.

But there will be no catfish and sunfish to provide easy fishing for small folk.

I suspect that the game department is being run primarily to suit the convenience of keen fishermen, especially those who belong to fish and game clubs. These are pressure groups who can make their voices heard. But the experts should remember that for every keen fisherman there are half a dozen luke-warm amateur fishermen who like to play at it warm amateur hisnermen who like to play at it once in a while, and a dozen youngsters who get a kick from catching any kind of fish, even though the game department sneers at it.

These people are citizens too.

We're getting a good number of game fish out of the lake now. Why not leave it alone?

Only Partial Solution

SAANICH Council's proposed special bylaw setting out an ar-rangement whereby different groups rangement whereby different groups could share enjoyment of Elk Lake will be of interest to many authorities perplexed by the problems created by speedboats on small lakes and tidewater bays.

Accepting the amply documented principle that speedboats and swimmers cannot use the same waters in safety, Saanich is attempting to draw a boundary line across Elk Lake. On one side boats of any size or power would be allowed to operate without restrictions other than those for safety. On the other swimmers would have exclusive enjoyment of the lake. If boat owners respect the privilege granted to them they would not be interfered with; but if they the council proposes an outright ban on powered boats. Beaver Lake will be closed to all boats with motors, which is a wise and neces-sary precaution in view of its small

This looks like a reasonable compromise arrangement, but it leaves unsolved the problem of nuisance to people who live in the vicinity. On still days, and especially in the evening, the high-pitched undulating whine of outboard motors carries for long distances, often far beyond the margins of the waters where boats are running. It is a noise which can be extremely hard on the nerves, and the come receipt in almost un and to some people is almost un-endurable. Picnickers and swimmers endurable. Picnickers and swimmers are entitled to safe enjoyment of popular lakes and saltwater bays, and the emphasis is largely on their protection. But surely those who live within assets. within earshot of waters frequented by speedboats also are entitled to a reasonable measure of peace and quiet, which thousands of them along lake and sea shores have lost.

This noise factor creates a problem which only those who suffer under it can fully appreciate. The law has taken steps to curb excessive noise from automobiles, but seems powerless to control the much greater annoyance caused by speedboats interminably circling lakes and bays which are as much parts of resi-dential areas as are the streets of suburbs. Sooner or later this probl will have to be tackled by the authorities in much the same way as the problem of noise from automo-biles was dealt with in earlier times.

The Garden Party

FXCEPT perhaps for some habitual garden party guests who qualify by signing the register and who may this year be disappointed, the broad list prepared by Lieutenant-Gov-ernor Ross for the royal occasion at the new Government House next week will win much acclaim. Actually this annual fete is the private affair of His Honor, underwritten and arranged by him as the host but made available each year to all those who care to sign the visitors' book. The presence this year of Her Majesty the Queen at the garden party has given it a new aspect and the lieutenantgovernor has altered the norm of the

Quite patently he has made a sincere attempt to invite as represen-tative a gathering as possible. Only those faced with a similar kind of selection will perhaps appreciate the delicacy and difficulty of choice in-volved. His Honor has played no favorites. The guests will come from all parts of the province and from all stations of life. The assembly will probably be the most varied— and therefore more truly representative—of any gathering in B.C. dur-ing the whole of the Queen's visit. Both Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross are to be commended for the wisdom of their decision and for the impartial distribution of invitations.

The annual Government House garden party is an event of distinction in the social calendar each year. It will be doubly so next week, when as the first and priority guest of the as the first and priority guest of the new Cary Castle the Queen will be in residence. Given good weather the occasion will be a gala one, especially so since among those strolling the lawns will be citizens specifically drawn from all walks of life. This will drawn from all walks of life. This will be one instance where validity is given to the "meet the people" theme of the royal tour. Through the courtesy of His Honor the varied population of B.C. in miniature will have the opportunity of close proximity to Her Majesty in a setting that is unsurpassed.

action for damages, and an issue in which contempt of court has been alleged are now before the courts of the province for hearing and adjudication. Two of these proceedings stem directly from the operation of British Columbia's new labor statute, while a third is the outgrowth of steps taken under its terms. The judicial hearing of the issues should prove a practical test of the enertment with guidance of the enactment, with guidance for the future.

The first limited injunction granted was that in a Mainland case af-fecting the Dominion Bridge Comfecting the Dominion Bridge Com-pany's new bridge, where withdrawal of bridge crews led to some stoppage of work on the project. The IWA strike in B.C.'s lumber camps gave rise to two references to the courts. One concerned the reported appear-ance this week of identified IWA workers at the entrance to deepsea lumber-loading operations at Ogden

Point docks, and the subsequent withdrawal for a day of longshore teams. The events at Ogden Point led to application for injunction against alleged picketing, and separately to a civil action for damages for erted loss to the ships' owners. Within the next few days court hearings are scheduled to follow on the pending injunction or other aptions. While there can be no comment on the several disputes at this point, this multi-sided testing of the new provincial labor law will be welcomed as the first judicial review contentious legislation. No doubt the attorney - general's department will though there is unlikely to be inter-vention by the Province in any of

The civil action is specially in-teresting, because it will be the first claim under the law for loss incurred during work stoppage.

The Reds are pushing an already overworked population close to the breaking point in their drive to overtake the West industrially before 1972. The stork is a major enemy of the Commu-nist planners. Each year there are at least 13,000,000 more mouths to feed. The Chinese Nationalists claim that last year alone there were an overwhelming 24,000,000 births, in a country which already leads the world with a population of about 640,000,000.

Intrinsically no painting can be worth such a figure, except in the sense that it cannot be duplicated and is thus worth any price. Some particular silver spoon in your own collection at home -- it might be a filigree heirloom or an inscribed book and not a spoon-falls into the same category.

It is without price yet of inestimable value—being beyond price

Rarity-it is that puts the bids up, allied to the avidity of the collector.

There is a social note to the sale of this picture, a double note in fact. One aspect relates to the exalted status of the former owner and taxation.

The Rubens was part of a duke's collection and it was being sold to help pay the death duties levied against his estate, These in this case nted to some 80 per cent.

A working man is not likely to lose sleep over such taxation, brutal involved. When there are a million is easily assuaged.

serve two masters. Neither can the CBC. The CBC's efforts to do so, to heed the "advice" of a member of the government, Revenue Minister Nowlan, and at the same time remain true to its function of serving the public interest and need, have brought perilously close to disaster. The Commons committee probe of political influence on the CBC has fizzled out. The committee went to the door of the henhouse, shotgun in hand, and demanded belligerently, "Who's in there?" George Nowlan's voice replied, "Nobody but us chickens," and the committee went away

However good humored, open and frank Nowlan was when he told the committee on broadcasting that he had frequently tendered advice to CBC acting president E. G. Bushnell, the fact remains that he erred in advising. That is not his function. He is not responsible for the CBC. rider between the CBC and Parlia-CBC is responsible; not to the gov-

Nowlan may not have interfered much more than Prime Minister St. Laurent did nearly three years ago when he wrote the CBC "as a private citizen" to protest against a radio talk by a certain Winnipeg university professor. Nowlan is in no better position than St. Laurent was to express personal views and have them accepted as such rather than as disguised orders from the govern-

However the real fault in this matter lies more with the CBC management. The CBC's gutlessness where the government is concerned is notorious, and barring appointment of a new CBC president with the special kind of courage need to stand up against governmental pressure, the answer would seem to be the establishment of a new kind of link between the CBC and Parliament.

For example, the CBC might be assigned by Parliament to the office of the Speaker of the Commons, with the deputy speaker assuming the chore of reporting to Parliament for the CBC. The non-political aura surrounding the speakership would be a shield against political interference

An alternative would be to set up a special three-man committee of the Commons, one member from each party, to report for the CBC, the chairman acting as mouthpiece. Or if could be a joint Senate-

Both old line parties have given good indication that they cannot be trusted not to meddle with the CBC, given the chance. This cannot be said of the CCF, but then the CCF hasn't had the chance.

As Parliament is the master of the CBC, the place for the government to air its criticism of the CBC is not in private talks with or letters to the CBC president, but rather in the Commons broadcasting committee, or in the Commons itself, or in the Senate. Then let the deputy speaker, or the special CBC committee, discuss it with the CBC management and bring a statement of the latter's position back to Parliament.

I believe it is of great importance to maintain the CBC as an unfettered forum of opinion beyond the in fluence of the government of the day. In the absence of a national press in this country the CRC is the only nation. To have it trimming its sails to the whims of government could be catastrophic to free discussion, the

Commonwealth Scholarships

By WENDY HALL

MORE than 100 delegates from all parts of the Commonwealth will assemble at Oxford on July 15 for an education conference which is yet another example of the co-oper-ation within the Commonwealth which has grown so much closer since the war.

Prime ministers have held fre quent conferences and foreign min-isters, defence ministers, finance ministers and supply ministers have also met to review policies and discuss problems. Now distinguished citizens of the Commonwealth are meeting together—this time on a non-political plane-to discuss education and "the traffic of men and minds" within a free academic community whose members all share the same aim, the pursuit of knowledge untrammelled by political considerations.

* * *
The conference, which stems from a decision taken at the Common-wealth Trade and Economic Conference at Montreal last year, will bring together representatives from all Commonwealth countries and from 15 colonial territories. Oxford, the oldest seat of learning in the Common-wealth, will in July be emptied of its students for the long vacation and delegates will occupy some of their rooms in Christ Church College, founded in 1525, The main purpose of the conference is to formulate a new program of Commonwealth scholarships and fellowships which it is hoped will come into being soon and will provide eventually a thousand places for scholars and fellows. The United Kingdom has agreed to be responsible for half these places, and Canada for one quarter. In addition, the conference will review the existing arrangements for educational co-operation between Commonwealth countries, and is expected to give particular attention to technical education, supply and training of teachers, and the interchange of university and other teaching staff.

The past half century has seen many examples of educational cooperation. The Association of Universities of the British Commonwealth, founded in 1912, has organized several congresses and has greatly furthered the movement of university teachers within the Commonwealth. An inter-university council for higher education overseas has guided the development of universities and colleges in the emerging Commonwealth countries and in colonial territories, and the Commonwealth University Interchange Scheme has provided funds to allow teachers and scholars to travel more easily. The League of British Commonwealth and Empire has arranged exchanges of teachers in Britain and other Commonwealth countries since 1919, and the Colombo Plan's Technical Co-operation Scheme has enabled large numbers of men and women to receive training outside their own countries

Many smaller organizations have made their own contribution to this

The United Kingdom government sponsoring the conference, and all delegates will be its guests when they are at Oxford and during the preceding week, when they will form study groups to visit educational establishments in different parts of Britain is a fitting centre for a conference dealing largely with higher education. Its universities, technical colleges, and other institutions draw numbers of students from overseas which increase every year and now stand at 40,000. Of these, about 26,000 come from the overseas Commonwealth. Britain grants a higher proportion of university places per cent-to overseas students than any other country.

In London, the proportion of overseas students is particularly high. and Technology about 20 per cent of the students come from overseas. At the four Inns of Court there are overseas students studying law.

The University of London stands in special relationship to the universities of the Commonwealth Most of the universities in Britain and the Commonwealth overseas founde during the last century began by preparing their students for the London University external degree examinations and only later received their own charters and degree-giving Thus from the outset a high uniform standard of scholarship was created throughout the Commonealth and this has done much to make students, scholars and teachers feel that they all belong to the same academic family however diverse their background and studies may be.

Already many scholarships are available to Commonwealth students among them the famous Rhodes Scholarships, British Council Scholarships, Nuffield Foundation Awards and the Athlone Fellowships. The Commonwealth Education Confer ence will, it is hoped, so increase the mobility of students that many more can share and profit by the diversity of the intellectual life the Commonwealth offers, and pursue their studies not only in Brita in many other countries of the Commonwealth.

TV Interference

I would like to ask how much longer do we, the general public, have to put up with the inconvenience of Channel 6 blotting out Channel 5? It is certainly most annoying to myself and, I am sure, hundreds of other listeners of TV when you try to get your favorite program on Channel 5.

When people have spent all kinds of money on their TV sets and have to put up with that kind of annoyance, I don't think it's fair play.

I believe it was mentioned some long time ago that CHEK was moving its transmitter to Saturna Island. I sincerely hope this takes place very soon as I was given to understand that this would eliminate this nuisance.

Quite a long time ago there were letters in the press concerning this subject but nothing has been done about

A Fair Shake

Cheers for the Ratepayers' Association and their reams about the "iniquitous school tax." Let's look at it: Here is John W. Littleguy, still on the sunny side of 40. He hasn't gotten too far yet, financially, and so owns no property, though he hopes to some day. So he pays no school tax. But he does own four youngsters of school age, and so is using to the hilt facilities he's not paying for.

Now over here is Arthur Q. Antique, the last of whose kids got out of school a quarter-century ago. Nothing Littleguy's kids are learning in school is going to do An-tique a bit of good; he's simply too far along. But he happens to own a piece of property and so is helping to pay for Littleguy's kids' education—even though Little-

Chest Finances

Mrs. Mary Smith's letter in the July 3 issue of the Colonist suggesting the 22 member agencies of the Community Chest publish their audited statements is a suggestion both timely and welcome.

The directors of the Chest discussed this matter a year ago and decided that the costs were prohibitive. To adequately list the details of each agency's statement in a paid advertisement, appearing in both papers, would re-sult in very heavy cost. Further, our local press and radio provide fairly complete coverage of Chest meetings, particularly items concerning expenditures, listing particularly items concerning expenditures, listing amounts approved by the directors for each agency, together with an explanation of all major increases in costs, or expansion of existing or new services.

Annual meetings of all agencies and the Chest are open to the general public and these have received widespread publicity. Further, in the Chest's advertisment of its annual meeting as required by the constitution, the general nual meeting as required by the constitution, the general public has been invited to either phone or write for an audited statement. Audited statements for the last fiscal year and agency allotments for this or any year will be given on request at 1951 Cook Street.

Our board of directors, all volunteers, have relied heavily on the recommendations of the budget committee in determining the amount each of our 22 agencies requires. This committee, presently chaired by Mr. Lyle Flury, a local chartered accountant, with representation from the professions, business, organized labor, and homemakes an exhaustive examination of each agency's budget. It was on their recommendation the 1959 campaign target of $325,000 was established, and it is the minimum amount needed if the Chest's services, together with the two additional agencies added this year, are to continue giving needed help.

We agree much needs to be done to inform the general public of the work that goes on day after day in the Chest

There is no doubt, in my mind, that if every person in a position to help knew of the need that exists and what the Chest agencies are doing, this year's campaign would the chest agenties are tonig. It is a specific to the cover subscribed by the good people of Greater Victoria. If anyone has any idea as to how we may do this difficult job of public information please let us know.

'Gotta Have Heart' For Fight Racket

By NED BROWN

NEW YORK (NANA)-It was St. Valentine's Day, 1913, and James Joy John ston sat in his Times Square office daydreaming. He was wishing The Good Saint would send him a heavyweight prospect. For this was the "white hope" era of boxing, when promoters and managers were seeking all over the world for a Caucasian gent who might be groomed to beat champion Jack Johnson.

There came a rap on the door. "Come in," called Jimmy, and in walked a "fine figure of a man." The new-comer stood an inch over six "Valentine," Jimmy got down sports departments, introduc-sports departments are placed as a sport of the super-sports departments are placed as a sport of the super-sports departments are placed as a sport of the super-sports departments are placed as a sport of the super-sport of the super-sports departments are placed as a sport of the super-sport of the super-sp gauged around 200 to cases.

Johnston, through years of successful maneouvring in the fight business, had earned the soubriquet of "Boy Bandit," and was both feared and respected by such contemporaries as Jimmy DeForest, Leo P. Flynn, Professor Billy MCarney, Billy Roche, Dan Morgan, Joe Jacobs and last, but far from least, Jack Kearns. All were graduates summa cum laude in the field of ballyhoo, trickery, finagling and general knavery in furthering their own ends or those of their fighters.

"Yauentine." Jimmy got down to cases.

"What's your name and are you a fighter?"

"My name's George Rodel

White, Yellow Color Scheme For Wedding

St. Andrew's Cathedral was the scene recently of the wedding of Patricia Anne Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sweeney, 1456 Thurlow Road, and Mr. Neal Joseph Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Caldwell, of Napanee, Ontario.

Father D. Johnson officiated at the ceremony which was marked by a solo rendering of Ave Maria during the signing of the register, sung by Mrs. Mariorie Sturgeon. Marjorie Sturgeon.

The bride in a floor-length gown of white organza with a bodice of Chantilly lace, the skirt slightly entrain, was attended by Miss Catherine Sweeney and Miss June Andress dressed in bouffant yellow, carrying mauve bouquets. They wore organza picture hats.

Lieut, Frank Bayfield-Davis was the best man and Sub.-Lts.
John Murray and Ronald Walker acted as ushers.

Uncle of the bride, Mr. Richard L. Colby, proposed the toast at the reception at Holy-rood House.

Garden Notes

Destroy and Reap!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One job which should be tackled pretty soon now is the pruning of black currant bushes. Not that there is any particular rush - lots of gardeners leave the pruning until late fall or early winter-but there are some very definite advantages in cutting out the fruited wood as soon as ting out the fruited wood as soon as possible after the fruit has been gathered.

You see, the biggest portion of next year's crop will be borne on this year's new wood, and in order for these sappy, succulent shoots to ripen and harden properly, they need all the sunshine and alr they can get. They never develop properly when choked, congested and shaded by a lot of useless old shoots.

Whenever possible, take out the of useless old shoots.

Whenever possible, take out the old wood by making your cuts low down on the bush, so that new growth is encouraged from near the Some varieties have a spreading habit of growth, and with these,

the low outer branches should be taken off first.

The commercial growing of black currants is enjoying a terrific boom in Great Britain at the moment, principally because black currant juice, with its tangy flavor and high vitamin C content, is supplanting orange juice as the national breakfast starter. The processors can't get enough fruit, and the high prices offered have led to heavy planting of bushes and some entirely new tech-pusness and some entirely new techniques in growing.

For instance, the pruning of a black currant bush in the old way was a job for a skilled craftsman, or at least for someone who could distinguish new wood from old and exercise some judgment in the weed. exercise some judgment in the use of the knife. Such slow, skillful and highly paid talent was out of place in the modern, high-volume, production-line plantations, and so the hedgerow system of growing was devised.

In this method, the bushes are planted only 30 inclues apart, with the rows separated by alleys wide enough for cultivating machines to operate. The pruning is simplicity itself—alternate bushes are cut to the ground every second year, an operaitself—alternate bushes are cut to the ground every second year, an operation which requires no judgment or experience at all. Combined with heavy doses of fertilizer and a thick manure mulch over the roots, such plantations are producing high-quality fruit and a higher tonnage per acre than ever came from plots grown in the traditional manner. grown in the traditional manner.

I mention this merely to illustrate the need for really hard pruning and heavy feeding for black currants. I see no reason, though, why such a system shouldn't be adapted to the ordinary backyard fruit plot, for with such close specing a home gardener. such close spacing, a home gardener could crowd double the number of bushes into the same space. Even if you crop only half of them each year under this simplified system, tharvest would still be substantial.

Union Move May Split Labor Party

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (CP) - Britain's most powerful union will be asked today to reject the new Labor Party policy on nuclear weapons, a move expected to split the party on the eve of a general election.

A draft resolution on the nuclear issue distributed to delegates attending the Trans-port and General Workers Union conference urges the Labor Party to repudiate the threatened use of nuclear weapons as a basis for defence

4. Every effort will be made through summit talks and other means to reach a stage-by-stage international agree-ment on disarmament.

STOP TESTS

The proposal calls on the Labor Party to pledge that:

1. Britain will stop H-Bomb ST. JOHN'S, Nfid. (UPI)-The writ also asked for damages "for loss and injury suffered" because the ships could not be loaded.

A major fire raced through the waterfront district yesterday, gutting a railway pier, 2. Britain will show the loaded. 2. Britain will never use nuclear weapons first or per-mit their use from British ter-

3. The Labor Party will object to the establishment of missile bases in Britain.

Ball of Fire Kills Child The Transport Workers resolution, if adopted in its present form, does not go as far as that passed by the National Union of General and Municipal Workers last month. That is presented in the Country's second HADERSLEV, Denmark (AP) — An explosion and fire raced Wednesday through an excursion boat loaded with a happy, sing-ing picnic crowd. Early to-day police said 44 persons were known dead.

Some of the victims died in the blast and fire. Others were drowned in the waters of Haderslev Park Lake in this ith Jutland resort area. Many persons were in hos-pital with burns and other in-juries, but their number and the total number of those who had been aboard was not known. Police sources said there were 34 known survivors.

BEYOND CAPACITY First reports had said about First reports had said about 50 persons were aboard the 45-foot craft, returning from woodland picnics near the lake west of town. But with the number of dead and injured going far beyond that total, authorities said the boat ap-parently was loaded beyond its authorized capacity.

Some survivors said the exshift gas line was put in op-eration to replace a line that had become blocked. There was no official confirmation and police said they had been mable to question the captain because he was among the badly injured.

ALBERNI SIGNING

In the Alberni district one operator signed an agreement on IWA terms and two others were reported to have signified their willingness to sign.

But operators' spokesman John Billings said that these and other agreements signed by independents were generally for "only a handful of men."

The Transport Workers resolution, if adopted in its present form, does not go as far as that passed by the National Union General and Monicipal Workers last month. That minor, the country's second dargest, asks the Labor Party to have Britain give up nuclear weapons on its own.

Last month the party and the Trades Union Congress issued a stafement rejecting such proposals.
